

FSC OPENS UP PUBLIC FINANCIAL BIG DATA

The FSC will make available about 44.5 million cases of public financial data through open API at www.data.go.kr beginning on June 9. Among the newly made available data, some 580,000 cases of non-listed firms' data will be opened up to the public for free for the first time, which is expected to help contribute to the advancement of the data economy and fintech industry.

The financial big data being opened up to the public is a byproduct of the linkage, convergence and standardization of large sets of public financial data stored at the FSC and nine other public financial institutions.

With the launching of public financial big data, more jobs are expected to be created in this field as well as more data-driven innovative services.

The FSC will work to make available more types of financial data and increase the number of participating institutions to the open financial big data system.
